GOVERNOR FERNALD TOLD STORIES TO

The Veterans While Whiling Away the Time,

At Auburn the Morning After the Veterans' Union.

Last Thursday morning there was a gathering of a dozen or more veterans of the Civil War at the Elm House in Auburn. Governor Fernald had given an address the night before to them, and the subject of the speech was being discussed with the Governor, who made one of the group. As the writer watched the faces of the veterans he was forcibly reminded of the fact frequently noted that there is a new type of man on deck today.

The type of feature that marked all these veterans was of the character that is typified in the familiar pictures of Abraham Lincoln. Every man looked like a leader. Not one of them that did not have the marks of intellectual superiority. They were men whose call to the defense of their country was answered because they felt the impulse of—shall we say patriotism?—principle is the word we feel better suited to the case.

In saying a new type has come onto the stage of action, we do not mean to say it is an inferior type, but that the general facial contour is so much modified that it indicates men with different characteristics. We might say that the modification is from the statesman-like type to the business style. The fact is noted for what it is worth, the purpose of this article is to give a few fragments of the off-hand talk

DID NOT HAVE A LICENSE.

Monday morning was the quietest in the Municipal court, Rumford, for many weeks. The only case was that against young Jackson, who has been conducting the pool room in the McMenamin block for John R. Douglass. Jackson did not have a license and was not aware of the fact that he needed one, and had no recourse but to plead guilty and take sentence. The court took cognizance of the facts in the case and made the fine $1.00 and costs amounting in all to $3.12.

OXFORD ASSOCIATION ANNUAL MEETING.

Universals of Oxford Association are to hold their annual session at Dixfield, October 15th and 16th. Addresses will be given under the general title of "The Will and the Ways of Religious Progress." Some of the special features are: Transient and Permanent Elements in Religious Experience; God's Will and Man's Ways; Universal Brotherhood and Church Extension; Our Women; At a business session, important matters of policy and work will be considered. Entertainment of delegates will be on the Harvard plan. Special rates have been granted by Maine Central and Grand Trunk Railroads.

DEATH OF MRS. ESTHER K. FRYE.

Mrs. Esther K. Frye, one of the older and most respected citizens of Bethel, died at her home on Broad street, on Friday afternoon. Mrs. Frye was born in Rumford, on November 12, 1829, and married the late Richard Frye, Esq., on December 1853. She has been a resident of Bethel for more than half a century. She has told many an interesting anecdote concerning the affairs of the town of its people in the earlier days before the building of the Grand Trunk Road. Prayers at the house at 12:30 were attended by her neighbors and friends. The funeral was held at the Universalist church, Tuesday afternoon and was conducted by Rev. H. Little.

NOTICE.

It becomes necessary for me to state to the people of Bethel, that on and after Oct. 1, I cannot deliver express messages unless the express charges are paid at time of delivery.

A. VAN DEN KERCKHOVEN.

"IN THE PRESENCE OF MAN'S STUPIDITY

Even the Gods Are Helpless," Quoted Dr. Stewart

In Lecture at the Methodist Church Rumford.

Wentworth Stewart, D. D. delivered a lecture at the Methodist church, Rumford, Thursday night, the title of which was "Fitted to a Star." He was introduced by the pastor, Rev. H. S. Byrd.

The lecturer began by speaking of the dreamers and visionary characters, and contrasting the reality of things. The tendency of these times is to the tangible and the practical. The commercialized man has no use for the visionary; yet the world were a cold and colorless thing without the dreamer. The faculty of imagination is the glorious inheritance that has made the real and tangible, the opportunities of the present time. The above thoughts were the ground work upon which the lecturer spoke for two hours and a quarter, and held the close attention of the audience.

He referred to Artemus Ward's lecture the title of which was "The Babes in the Woods." There was nothing in the lecture that related to the babes in the woods, literally speaking, so in this there was nothing about being hitched to a star to be spoken of. The speaker then passed in review the great accomplishments of the heroes of the world, from Moses having visions at the foot of Mt. Sinai to Abraham Lincoln, who dreamed of the great things he might do while spitting rails on his father's farm in America.

The wonders of modern life, the express train, the steamship, the automobile, and the air ship were all paraded before the audience, and the fact that men caught visions of these things and dreamed of them years before the practical development resulted, was left for the reflection of the listeners, while the lecturer branched off to speak well of the optimistic man, to sympathize with the man who cannot whistle and the woman who cannot sing. He then in imagination took his hearers through the mists of childhood reveries, and showed them what wonders the imagination, with the assistance of memory can accomplish. He described the thrill that a man experiences when holding the reins over a pair of spirited horses. The automobile is all right, but it will never put the horse out of use. The horse is a companion. One can talk to a horse, and if you have the proper imagination he will talk to you. The horse will be a factor in life, because the animal has life. Life is the thing.

Do you recall the high ideal you had in your boyhood days? The boy without ideals is without prospects. What a boy thinks, he is likely to become. Let him expand. Let him dream. Let him explode. The boy will not be any better than he wants to be. The methods of teaching religion to the boys was severely criticized, although the speaker was a Methodist minister. The boy wanted three square meals a day, and plenty of time to dream and build air castles.

He then dipped into the perils of the times, "Commercialism." He spoke of the business acumen, and how everything was being prostituted to the idea of "getting a living." "Why the animals that root and grunt can get a living. Living a life is quite another thing." The beauties of life, the necessity of being alive and seeing things, understanding principles, were spoken of, at some length. Some men see things with their eyes but not with their understanding, was the thought brought out. He is the practical man, who has no use for the dreamer. The architect does not build the house, but he designs it, and long before he makes a line of the drawing he has dreamed out the general features of the design.

At this point some humor was indulged in at the expense of the physicians and Christian scientists. He thought the American people were madly running after men who "do things." The doctors are being run after, and it is probably because they do things, and can prove it. All they have to do is to point to a cemetery anywhere.

The idea of being master of one's

G. A. R. POSTS AND RELIEF CORPS

Held Camp Fire at Bethel Last Week.

An Interesting Occasion and a Lift for Patriotism.

Those who remember Wednesday of last week, recall the fact that it was one of those ideal days when all nature seemed to rejoice and bid all mankind to rejoice as well. It was another red letter day for many of the people of Bethel.

The occasion was a meeting of the various G. A. R. Posts and Relief Corps of Oxford County and Mechanic Falls. Anything of a patriotic nature always touches a responsive chord in the hearts of the people of Bethel and this occasion brought no exception to the rule. Early in the day, long before the visitors arrived, "Old Glory" was waving from the stores and residences on the principal streets of the town, giving a patriotic tone to the day and place, which should have touched the visitors upon their arrival.

I. O. O. F. hall was the rendezvous and at twelve o'clock an excellent dinner was served by the Bethel Relief Corps. At 1:30 p. m. a camp fire was held and proved one of the most interesting occasions in Bethel for many a day. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Mae R. Bartlett, president of the Bethel Corps, and after the opening hymn and prayer by Rev. J. H. Little, gave a very cordial and earnest address of welcome, which was ably responded to by Rev. J. H. Little. Miss Geneva Hutchins then read "The Little Brown Button He Wears on His Coat."

Speechmaking was then in order, and Comrade A. M. True was called to preside, and not the least interesting feature of the day was the introduction of the various speakers. The Major did much honor to himself and kept something doing all of the time.

Among those who were called upon for addresses from away, were Comrades LeGrow of Norway, Richardson of South Paris, Frank Martin of Rumford, Cyrus Wardwell of Oxford, Noyes of So. Paris, Saunders of Oxford and Whitman of Bryant Pond, also Mrs. Curtis of So. Paris, Mrs. Braden of Norway and Mrs. Andrews of Oxford. The local speakers were N. R. Springer, E. C. Bowler and E. C. Park. The day was a glorious one, not only from the weather standpoint, but from all standpoints. People from various parts of the county met, and exercised it, in the interest of "Old Glory" and a meeting which will stand for much in the memory of all who attended. May many such occasions follow.

AUTO ACCIDENT IN BETHEL SUNDAY.

There was a collision of autos in Bethel, last Sunday morning. Mr. C. L. Howe of Rumford, was having a little trouble with his Cadillac, and Mr. Durell of the machine shop force was taking him in a Maxwell runabout over to Mayville to get a spark coil. They were proceeding behind Paul Thurston, who was driving his cylinder Cadillac. Thurston suddenly brought his machine to a standstill and Durell was following so closely that he could not stop the Maxwell before it collided with Thurston's machine.

The small machine got its nose bumped badly. In fact the radiator was badly smashed, besides other injuries being sustained.

Mr. Howe was the only person injured, he having suffered the dislocation of a shoulder. He was taken to Rumford by Mr. Thurston.

FLORA B. WIGHT

Passed Away at the Hospital in Augusta.

Word was received Wednesday morning of the death of Flora Bartlett Wight, wife of Prof. W. B. Wight, at the hospital in Augusta. Mrs. Wight had been in failing health for some time past. Prof. Wight and little daughter, Marie, have the sincere sympathy of a host of friends.

JOSEPH VAITENKO KILLED MONDAY.

At International Paper Co. Mill Rumford.

Crushed by Falling Bricks and Cement.

Monday afternoon at about four o'clock, a Lithuanian named Joseph Vaitenko was injured in the International Paper Co. mill at Rumford, and died at 5:30 at Dr. McCarty's private hospital. The deceased was about 28 years old, and had been in this country about three years. Has one brother here.

The circumstances surrounding the accident appear as follows. A brick and cement tank for keeping acid in, was being taken down, it having outlived its usefulness. The hands that surrounded and helped strengthen it, had been taken off, and the walls of brick and cement loosened and hardly able to support their own weight, were standing. The tank is said to have been about 15 feet high. Boards had been left on top. It is said that the regular men for repair work were away from the job. Vaitenko and another man, whose name we did not learn, were on top of the tank, whether by their own volition or by direction we did not learn, when the walls collapsed inward. There were boards standing upright against the tank, and the other man caught hold of one of them by the top, and saved himself from going down. Vaitenko fell and the large sections of cement crushed him. He was insensible when taken out and died without regaining consciousness. When taken to the hospital there was hardly perceptible life, and there was no hope for him, although the physicians did all that could be done. If he had lived he would have been a physical wreck, for his legs were so badly crushed that amputation would have been necessary. He was injured internally also.

L. T. PHILBROOK GOES TO JAIL.

Last week, Deputy Sheriff Small arrested L. T. Philbrook and made a seizure of whiskey in his room in the Cheney building, and also three bottles from his person. Tuesday he was sentenced in the Municipal court to pay $100 on one count and $50 on another. In default of payment he was taken to Paris jail, Wednesday morning.

MILLINERY OPENING.

Miss Stearns held her millinery opening last Friday and Saturday. There was the usual large array of pretty and stylish hats and all shapes and sizes. Among them are the hats made of moire silk and bengaline silk, which is also used as trimming. The Russian turban and Cosack turban and hats with drooping brims are very stylish. Fur hats will be worn a great deal this winter.

Miss Stearns has a large variety of trimmings, in fact everything that could be desired by the most fastidious.

GEO. E. KIDDER OF RUMFORD

Received Bullet Wound and Will Probably Die.

Geo. E. Kidder, an old and well known resident of Rumford, received a bullet wound in the right side below the abdomen at noon, Wednesday, and will probably die. The exact circumstances of the accident are not ascertainable at this time.

Mr. Kidder is a carpenter and is employed in the Bag Mill, and lives at 33 Rumford Ave. He was not working Wednesday forenoon and was over town and got a hair cut and shave and went home about 12 o'clock, stopping to get a paper on the way. He seemed in his usual good spirits. At 12:15 doctors were called to the house and found him dangerously wounded. In the confusion immediately following the affair no particulars could be learned. Mrs. Kidder stated that he was cleaning a revolver and it accidentally discharged itself.

As we go to press, news is received that the bullet has been extracted and some hopes are entertained of his recovery.

IN LOVING MEMORY.

The glory of these golden days is dimmed for many of us by the shadow of a great grief. There has gone out from us one whose companionship has long been a source of happiness and strength. And the world seems a poorer place for the loss.

Mrs. Frye was one whom all delighted to honor, whom those who were privileged to know her well, dearly loved.

With an inheritance from the best New England ancestry she was endowed with unusual powers.

Of distinguished physical beauty, with a certain fine dignity of bearing and gracious charm of manner, she would have been an admired personality in any circle. These outward qualities were but the index of her character.

Here was a nature cast in a heroic mould. One cannot imagine any suffering which she would not have unflinchingly borne. She met every task with confident courage, every sorrow bravely. She bore for years the burden of extremely delicate health. Yet these years were crowded with useful work. She held no uncertain beliefs, no wavering convictions. She took firm ground on religious, political and social questions and held it loyally, but always with an admiring respect for the strongly held positions of others.

Pre-eminently a home-maker and homeliver, she brought to the problems of daily life a clear-headed ability that furnished sure solutions. Her common round of daily duty was followed in a spirit which glorified the plainest task.

She proudly rejoined in the happiest of home relations. She gave to husband and child an absolutely perfect love and devotion, and received it in return. An ideal wife, an ideal mother. An always loyal and helpful friend. A lover of children, whose naughtiness she covered with loving leniency, whose virtues she unfailingly magnified and encouraged.

Skilled beyond most in all useful ways she yet held far reaching interests. However full the day of household achievements, the evening always brought hours for books and reading.

One wonders if the feverish activities of the present time will foster lives of as fair a record as that just now laid down. One almost fears that with the passing of the men and women bred in the days of steadfast faith, of simple living, when the dignity of labor was recognized and intellectual achievements highly honored, we have lost the best thing that our New England soil can produce.

There rests upon us now as a heritage and inspiration, the abiding memory of this quiet forceful life, rich in faithful devotion to those she loved, in countless neighborly kindnesses, in allegiance to the best good of the community, in high erected faith in God and in His world.

So she whom we mourn today, will live among us, in a blessed immortality, of tender thoughts, hallowed associations and undying influences.

M. C. H.
There was born to the wife of Harry L. Thillett, Monday morning, a girl baby.

To the wife of Frank F. Howard, Knox street, Rumford, Monday, a boy was born.

Buy a Barrel of This Flour

You will find it real economy to buy the famous William Tell Flour by the barrel.

You will not only protect yourself against advances in price due to "wheat corners" and crop conditions, but you will always be sure of the finest grained bread—the whitest bread—the lightest biscuit—the most delicious pastry that can be baked.

Note how much cleaner William Tell is than other flours—due to the costly equipment of the Ansted & Burk Company's mills for protecting the grain and flour in grinding.

Ask your dealer and insist on having—

NOVELTIES IN JET

ARTICLES JUST NOW ARE IMMENSELY SOUGHT AFTER.

Revival of the Classic Fashions Responsible for Much of the Favor Just Now Shown to This Material.

The demand for jet is so great that the supply is entirely inadequate and all the jet in this country has been bought up for months to come. The best jet comes from France and most of the novelties are made over there. Just at present all these novelties, from shoe buckles to earrings and collar studs, are immensely sought after. With black and white gowns, which are to be more popular than ever this year, all the jet ornaments are particularly attractive. Naturally, the blondes are especially taken with the large jet barrettes made in beautiful cut stones and even larger than the Mary Garden barrette.

The revival of the classic fashions brought the return of the earring, and the long jet pendant with a pearl or diamond at the top is always distinguished looking. There are long ropes of jet beads in the sparkling cut or the dull jet of mourning, and there are jet ornaments galore for the hat and bonnet, when this is not made of bands of jet and completed with a jet spangled algrette.

The tremendous vogue for all the imitation jewelry shows that the fashions of Louis XV. are well on their way back. For that was the heyday of paste, and even the great king himself did not disdain substituting imitation diamonds for the real in his waistcoat buttons when the financial pressure was strong.

The Louis Quinze bowknots in rhinestones and paste diamonds are set in silver and made the exact shape of the antique bowknots which were worn on the bodices by the court ladies.

Handsome combinations of rhinestones and jet are seen in ornaments for hats, the brilliancy of the rhinestone being enhanced by its somber neighbor.

A jet set is not complete without the jet collar and bracelets which are the same wide bracelets which were popular about 30 years ago.

The cut jet brooch is no longer an emblem of mourning but may simply be worn to give the note of black necessary to one's frock, or the jetted fan is carried for the same purpose. Purses of jet and handsome jet umbrellas handles, tiaras, La Vallieres, stick pins and hat pins of all kinds form some of the ways in which jet is employed, and which make it the most popular jewelry for summer wear.

The Continental Hat.

Last autumn the world of fashion underwent a complete revolution. The styles of the directoire period were revived and received with open arms by smart women.

There seems to be no real reason why some day we should not return to the styles of revolutionary days, with state brocade gowns, powdered padlars, and powdered hair.

Among the hats at a recent millinery opening was a smart, tailored model of stiff straw, the brim rolled back to make the hat triangular in shape. It was simply trimmed with broad black velvet ribbon and flat bows and had two quills caught at the left side.

It was exceedingly good looking and reminded one of the blue and buff hats worn by Gen. Washington's continental soldiery, in the war of independence.

Strings on Hats.

A number of the wide-brimmed hats of the summer have loose, floating strings that lie on the shoulder or knot well below the bust. They do not lie beneath the chin in the old manner. They are usually of black velvet and go across the crown of the hat, and are lightly attached to the sides.

Some girls toss the strings backward over the shoulder or in front of the arm, and let them hang without tying. On a hat trimmed with foliage these velvet ribbons are quite a good touch.

A Sewing Tip.

Why not keep a pair of tweezers in the workbasket? You have no idea how useful they are to pull out stubborn ends of basting cotton, particularly when the machine stitching has run over the basting. Such accidents are very frequent, no matter how careful the seamstress may be, and the tweezers will really prove of great assistance.

Beware of One-Piece Gowns.

If a woman has a poor figure, the one-piece frock is not the best choice, for it too plainly reveals the imperfections which most often congregate around the waist line.

Law of Attraction.

The attractions of men to women and women to men are full of the most perplexing inconsistencies and contradictions imaginable. It is, for instance, a physical law that magnetism is not simple attraction of one thing for another, but the difference of two opposing forces of attraction and repulsion, of which the former is the greater. The same law holds in relation to the attraction of men and women for each other, in which, as a rule, the masculine is the superior force.

A Studied Explanation.

"Will you be able to explain your attitude on the tariff?" "Yes," answered Senator Sorghum, "I'll have my explanation ready when the time comes. But I'll wait till my constituents are interested in other things and will carefully make it a little hard to understand."—Washington Star.

Helpful Literature.

"What books have helped you most?" asked the serious young woman. "I don't remember their names," answered Senator Sorghum. "But they're the government publications I am permitted to present to my admiring constituents."

NORWAY AND SOUTH PARIS

NORWAY.

Pecks Bad Boy is the next attraction in the Opera House. The company will be here Saturday, Oct. 9th.

Mr. E. E. Andrews and family are comfortably settled in their new home on Main street. The buildings are modern in every particular, and the whole structure suggests comfort in every way.

Mr. Chas. W. Chick and family were at Buckfield over Sunday.

James Boutwell has given up the rent in the Hamilton house at the Falls and moved to Whitefield, N. H. Mr. Boutwell came here in 1908 and secured employment with the Novelty Company, where he has since worked until poor health caused him to make a change and secure outside employment in New Hampshire.

Supt. of schools, L. N. Peck has moved his family into the Clark house opposite C. H. Adams' residence on Main street.

The Electric Light Company are changing their wires on lower Main street. New poles have been set on the north side and the wires will hereafter pass from the Falls to the Congregational church without crossing the street.

A chimney burning out in H. E. Andrews' residence on Paris street caused considerable excitement late Sunday afternoon. The adjoining woodwork caught fire from the overheated bricks but prompt action with a lawn hose prevented serious consequences.

Norway sent a large delegation to the Waterford world's fair last Saturday. Automobiles and all manner of horse power vehicles were pressed into service to transport the multitude anxious to attend. Not a team could be found at any livery stable after ten o'clock in the forenoon.

Union revival services are being held under the direction of Rev. W. F. Stewart, C. D. of Detroit, Mich. The first meeting was held in Norway Opera House last Sunday afternoon, which drew an audience of three hundred. Another large crowd gathered at the same place in the evening. This week the services are being held in the Methodist church, both afternoon and evening, with another gathering in the Opera House next Sunday. Next week the meetings will continue in the Congregational church. Evangelist Stewart is an interesting and forceful speaker; illustrating his theme with well chosen and thoroughly convincing arguments. Rev. J. A. Belcher of Livermore Falls is the chorus director and soloist.

Central Park will continue in business during the winter, using the casino for dancing, vaudeville and motion pictures. A new fire proof booth has been installed; the walls have been sheathed and heating arrangements completed to make the room comfortable and cozy during cold weather.

The annual State Convention of Universalist Sunday Schools is in session at the Universalist church here. The first session was opened Tuesday morning by an address of welcome by Stephen B. Cummings of Norway. The program arranged for the convention is varied and interesting, so should draw a large number not affiliated with the particular faith, though one in spirit.

HIGHLANDS OF ONTARIO.

Many people have chosen resorts by the sea for their vacation this summer, others the mountains, and many the inland waters of the "Highlands of Ontario" for that much needed rest that one should take at least every twelve months. In many cases the desired haven was found, but in others, the more fashionable resorts did not give the restful quiet which in most cases is needed and return to the office with only half the good accomplished. There is one place, however, which offers no limited inducements to those whose health is run down, or those who are in need of relaxation from worry and work. This place is known as the Algonquin National Park of Ontario, situated 200 miles north of the city of Toronto and 100 miles west of Ottawa. Here the conditions are ideal. The altitude at the Park station, your objective point, is 1700 feet above sea level. The "Highland Inn" built for the accommodation of 100 people on a bluff overlooking the lake, is a comfortable hotel, set on one of the beauty spots of this charming reserve.

Modern plumbing with bathrooms with hot and cold water, large bright sleeping rooms, every longing room with large, bright open fireplaces, are a few of the special features. The "Inn" is also heated by furnace.

The months of October and November are ideal in this locality and a sojourn there is recommended.

SOUTH PARIS.

Minot Whittle and N. Dayton Bolter have improved the looks of their buildings recently by newly painting them.

Mr. William F. Stone and wife of Portland, have been visiting Mr. Stone's mother, Mrs. Marjorie Stone.

Miss Maud Douglas has been elected president of the Young Peoples' Christian Union of the Universalist church. Miss Isabel Morton, who has served in that position, having gone to Boston to resume her study in art.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Stanley of Auburn and Mr. and Mrs. Newton Stanley of South Portland, were the guests at G. W. Bowker's and Wirt Stanley's the first of the week. Mrs. Newton is now with Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Stanley at Auburn for a visit. Mr. Newton Stanley remaining to spend a part of his vacation with his brother Wirt, hunting partridge and woodcock.

The delegation from William K. Kimball Post and Ladies of the G. A. R. who accepted the invitation of the Bethel Post and Corps Wednesday of last week, report a fine time and credit the Bethel people as being splendid entertainers.

The ladies of the Congregational church will serve their annual harvest supper this Thursday evening. The principal feature of the entertainment which will follow the supper will be a lecture by Rev. A. T. McWhorter on his recent trip to Ireland. There will also be music by local talent.

The special town meeting Monday afternoon lasted about six minutes. It was called to order by Clerk William J. Wheeler and Walter L. Gray was chosen moderator. Ballots were distributed for Charles H. Howard for treasurer to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Frank A. Shurtliff and all of the 27 votes cast were for Mr. Howard. That the people would be only too glad to vote for Mr. Howard if he would accept the office, was generally understood. At a special meeting of Mt. Mira Building Association, held Saturday afternoon, Mr. Howard was elected treasurer of that Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton C. Wheeler, Mrs. A. T. Forbes, Miss Maud Douglas and Arthur E. Forbes enjoyed a few autumn days at Shagg Pond last week. Mr. and Mrs. Forbes and Miss Douglas returned by team Friday, but Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler remained until Saturday and walked the entire distance which is about 15 miles. They would seem to hold the championship for long distance walking for the season.

The October term of the Supreme Judicial court of Oxford County, begins next Tuesday. The regular court term meeting will be held that evening.

Mt. Pleasant Nebekah Lodge will enjoy a roll call and serve refreshments at its meeting Friday evening of this week.

The new pipe organ for the Baptist church will arrive this week. There will be a special meeting of South Paris Village Corporation at 7:30 at Engine House hall next Friday evening. Business is to elect a treasurer of the Corporation and also to see what action will be taken in regard to polling the streets and providing money for the purpose.

The Baptist Junior C. E. Society will give a sociable at the church vestry next Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. All children invited.

Paris high school football team opened its season last Saturday at Hebron, being defeated by the strong Hebron Academy second team by a score of 20 to 0. This sounds rather bad for Paris, but really was no worse than they expected. With enough candidates to make up four teams and the professional coaching they receive, the second team of the Academy is almost the equal of the first, and this fact together with the fact that the Hebron team had men in their line up weighing over 150 pounds playing against Paris players who weighed less than 100 easily shows the cause of their defeat.

Paris is playing football for the first time for several seasons and needs considerable hard practice. However, they did the best they could and were not at all disheartened over the defeat, which was expected. Next Saturday Paris plays Norway high on the high school grounds and the fair is sure to fly.

LOCAL HISTORY.

Rev. Chas. Frost, Bethel West Parish Congregational Church.

Incidental Memorandum—By Leonard B. Chapman. Number 25.

HIS HOME.

March 10th, 1822, for a consideration of four hundred dollars, Jedediah Burbank, "coroner" of Bethel, conveyed to Charles Frost, "preacher," "sixteen acres of land, being a part of the farm formerly owned by Jonathan Clark, including the house where he formerly lived."

The place is familiar to every one residing upon Bethel Hill, a half town out of the house appearing in the history of the town, the camera exposure for which was made in my presence and the plate is now in my possession. The house and surroundings has been noticed in this series of articles. It has outlived all other things of its kind in the town—its passing is not far distant.

Outside of what Dr. Nathaniel T. True and Dr. William B. Lapham done in their day to perpetuate the name of Bethel, early incidents, sojourners and students at Gould's Academy, the institution now receiving a more liberal and wide spread support than ever before, have given to the breeze in prose and poetry, notices of the place that will live not only on account of quantity, but quality of productions. Rev. Henry Ward Beecher said in one of his almost inimitable pulpit discourses, when the writer was present—"If you would have your name live on till the destruction of all worldly matters, write a book!" Admitting the declaration of the pulpit orator to be true then Messrs. Drs. True's and Lapham's names are safe. Their labors did not however cover the whole vineyard in detail—such a thing as this can never be done. No history is complete; if seemingly so at the time of publication, undiscovered facts soon appear that makes supplementary labor necessary. The maiden's face—her hall room attire and graceful movements may charm, but it is the written record of acts that live and become the groundwork of the biographer aided and supported by tradition, relying upon tradition wholly when there is no written record.

In the Portland Transcript, commencing April 21, 1850, appeared a descriptive article of the town, or rather its early history, running through three issues of the periodical, which article raised the question, or reopened the inquiry, whether or not the intervals lands of the town were ever really covered by a heavy pine tree or any other heavy timber growth. The Portland Sunday Times of March 12, 1903, contained a half tone cut of Rev. Joshua Taylor, the Methodist, with his Portland home, and the same of Rev. Caleb Bradley, Congregationalist, who discussed the matter of "order" as a doctrinal question in ecclesiastical affairs in the Lieut. Jonathan Clark residence in 1795, a hundred and ten years since, the article covering nearly a page of description with cuts.

In the Portland Sunday Times of February 14, 1909, appears a most excellent cut of the Bethel Clark house and Parson Bradley's schoolhouse and study, used by him after he was in Bethel—now pulled down—with much pertaining to his career, and his residence located two miles from Portland where it stood more than a century is also gone with his three wives and large family of children, but that of Parson Taylor remains in Portland fast as he left it, but the earthly resting place of his remains in the Eastern cemetery is unmarked.

Located not far distant from the Bethel Clark house, may be seen in one of "God's half acre" lots—considerably neglected just now—the grave of his children, unpretentious in design and humble in appearance but in keeping with the period in which he labored.

GOV. FERNALD TOLD STORIES TO VETERANS.

that makes the social gatherings pleasant to remember.

"Governor, let me introduce you to one of the boys—Col. Boyce. If you please," said one veteran as he presented a comrade whose boyish ways were forgotten before the call for volunteers was ever issued. If that is the way you are going to turn names to account let me introduce you to a man who is all heart—Comrade Hart, Governor."

After a few more pleasant remarks, the Governor suggested that an man ought to leave the State without a visit to Togus. That brought out some stories about soldiers' homes. One veteran said "I went to the Daves soldiers' home in Ohio, and as I was walking along talking to my guide, a gray and bent inmate shouted 'How is the name of the Great Jehovah did you get out here?' I looked and there was a comrade that I had not seen for thirty years. He knew me at sight—fer it was my fog horn voice that he recognized. I contracted a habit of cackling loud when a boy because of the deafness of my father, and people have often said to me 'you were at such a place at such a time.' How do you know I've asked, and had this reply, 'Oh I was not there but passing by heard your voice'."

The Governor observed that as a nation we were said to be loud speakers. It was suggested that loud voices indicated honesty. The conversation then drifted a little, and politics became momentarily mixed in. There was some complimentary remark passed to the credit of the Democrats, and the Governor acquiesced in the compliment, but said with a smile, possibly thinking of the next election, "I hope they will not increase any in numbers."

The talk then turned to the matter of ages. There were men in the crowd under sixty-five and some were in the eighties. It was remarked that for men who had been through the hardships of war, and attained such advanced ages they were well preserved. One man who had a humorous turn of mind said that they were all very tough characters, and that was the reason why they survived. If they had been good, they would have all died young. There was more or less said about this phase of life, and the Governor told a true story to illustrate the apparent truth of the saying.

As we might not be able to quote his exact words, we will tell the story in our own way, and perhaps leave out some features not necessary to its point. The story was not told for publication, although the Governor was informed that it would find its way into print.

In a certain town—in Maine, possibly in Oxford County, but more likely just beyond the borders—there lived a fine old man, who had been industrious, abstemious, and correct in all his ways of life. At the age of 76 he was resting on his oars, and taking life easy, with a good country fortune—perhaps $10,000. He had become somewhat affected by the admiration that had been bestowed upon him for his upright character, and had formed the habit of recounting his virtues to the boys in his neighborhood, for the purpose of stimulating them to follow his example.

One day in the blacksmith shop there were several boys, and they were not showing the best side of themselves, and the old man took occasion to recount what he had done, and how he had lived, and then said "You see, I am in good health, and have got a fortune."

While he was telling the story, old Uncle Somebody, over eighty, and worth probably $100,000, came in. He had heard the recital before and perhaps was not feeling just right that day, and in a sort of an irritated manner, broke out in this fashion: "Now boys you've heard Mr. Blank a tellin' of ye how good he was, and it ain't for me to dispute him, an' I don't want to say nothin' to prevent ye from followin' his example, but I want to tell ye that I have done all the things he says he hasn't—I do not boast about my size—and I am goin' an seven year older'n him, and ain't den fur yit, and by Hok-ey Smoke as far as money, everyone here knows as how I can buy and sell him seven times over." As he snapped out the last sentence he looked about the gathering, and taking the chair that was near him by the back, set it down with considerable force and walked out without another word.

Of course this led to several stories that are current illustrating the old saying about the good dying young, and from the stories related of themselves the listener was compelled to believe that at least the contrary force was responsible for the good old age most of them were enjoying.

But not a man of them looked as though he had ever done anything worse than to fight—for his country. Nearly everyone had received a wound, several were minus an arm (and what a sad commentary upon civilization such sights are) and as above said were fine appearing men. Then came stories of experiences. One man said he was hit full in the mouth, the bullet striking his teeth, and glancing to the side killed the soldier next to him—at least that was the supposition. His teeth were shattered, and he was insensible for a moment. When he came to, his first act was to feel at the back of his neck. He expected to feel a hole there. There were many other stories told, all of interest, but we must let this suffice. All the soldiers at this meeting were men who had seen actual service. They came from different parts of the country.

profession was a theme that was made much of. The idea that because a father was a doctor that he should make doctors of his sons was not keeping with the best methods. The same with a preacher. He related the story of his own disappointment when he found his ten year old son absorbed in the construction of a block house and realized that in that work the boy had found the thing that interested him the most in the world. "It is bitter to be a good carpenter than a poor preacher. The world is full of poor preachers, and it is hard work to find a good carpenter."

He then described the pompous manner in which a young man lacks his sheepskin on the wall, and expects people to think him master of his profession. Just what a sheepskin is the speaker professed not to know. It made no difference. What people want to know is does the young man know anything? You cannot make a preacher or a doctor by giving a fellow a sel-lege education.

Much was said about the man who was rattling about trying to fill some position that he was not fitted for. The fact that men got into positions through one means or another, that they were not capable of, and did not know their incapacity, just because they had a sheepskin or some other thing that indicated that they had been through college, was a theme that brought out a quotation from Ingersoll to show the condition the people were in under such circumstances. The saying was, "In the presence of human stupidity even the Gods stand helpless."

He scored the "400" idea in society, and then explained the reason that women would wear hats that were ridiculous in appearance, and said some persons took their ideas in the same way. Some one had put the stamp of style on the hat or idea, and that settled the thing.

The idea of keeping the eyes open was illustrated by reference to Newton who saw an apple fall—apples had been falling ever since the fall in Eden—and millions of men had seen them fall, but Newton saw with understanding what others saw with their eyes only. Franklin saw the lightning playing about the mountain tops and lightning in the sky in a dark night, and he dreamed that possibly it was within the power of man to capture and make use of it to light the world. Lightning had been playing about the mountain tops since the world began. Franklin saw with his imagination, and to day the practical Edison is using the results of that dream to do just what Franklin saw as a possibility—lighting the world and doing other things that are to solve the problems of the universe.

CO-OPERATION, THE SUBJECT OF BAPTIST MINISTER'S SERMON.

Rev. Harold L. Haines of the Baptist church, Hamford, preached Sunday on the idea of co-operation, and brought out some facts concerning the federation of churches movement. He explained the great advantage derived in all movements by co-operation. He pictured the time when instead of branches, the religion of humanity would be one great tree without branches.

AFFECT FERTILITY OF EGGS.

Too Warm Quarters and Overfeeding Laying Stock Have Injurious Effect.

Officials of the department of agriculture have been collecting data regarding the factors which affect the fertility of eggs. It has been found that too warm quarters for laying stock and overfeeding are commonly believed to exercise an unfavorable influence on egg fertility. The way eggs are handled or stored is also believed to affect the proportions which will hatch.

The conditions under which incubation occurs also have an effect. The vigor and character of the parent stock and the length of time the male bird has been with the flock are also important questions with respect to egg fertility. At the outset it should be stated that fertility and "hatchability" are not necessarily identical. An egg may be fertile and still the germ does not have sufficient vitality to produce a healthy chick under the ordinary conditions of incubation. In a series of incubator experiments at the Rhode Island station, of 8,577 eggs tested 83 per cent. were found to be fertile, while only 46 per cent. of the fertile eggs, or 38.6 per cent. of the total number of eggs, hatched under the conditions of the tests.

The various observations made, while not entirely conclusive, indicate that, in order to secure fertile eggs which will hatch, the laying stock must not be kept in very warm quarters; males should be kept with the hens continually and only those eggs should be used which are produced after the male has been with the hens several days. Only fowls from very vigorous parent stock and those known to produce a high percentage of fertile eggs (hens vary widely in this respect), should be used. The hens should be allowed to rest after each laying period, while the eggs should be handled carefully, not be subjected to extremes of temperature in storage and be used only when comparatively fresh.

PROFITABLE POULTRY FEED.

Successful Raising of Chickens Depends on Supplying Proper Kind of Feed at Right Time.

The successful raising of poultry, whether for meat or eggs, depends upon supplying the right kind of feed in the proper proportion. A fowl requires a certain quantity of food containing protein, carbohydrates and ash to sustain life. A surplus over and above this goes to produce eggs or accumulate flesh. A study of the composition of the body and feather of a fowl shows that almost one-half of the dry matter of the body is protein and about eight per cent. ash.

Investigations by Jenster at the New York experiment station show that the body of a Leghorn hen, body, bones, feathers and viscera, contains 55.8 per cent. water, 17.6 per cent. protein, 2.8 per cent. ash and 17 per cent. fat. The analysis of a fresh egg shows its composition to be: Shell 11.4 per cent., water 65.7 per cent., fat 8.9 per cent., and protein between 11 per cent. and 13 per cent. Of the total dry matter in an egg, including the shell, there is 35.6 per cent. ash, 25.9 per cent. fat and from 33 to 38 per cent. protein.

A study of the above analysis shows clearly the importance of supplying a liberal allowance of both protein and ash matter in the rations of poultry.

NOTES OF THE POULTRY YARD.

With over 70 distinct breeds of fowls to select from it always seemed curious to me why some people insisted upon keeping scrub hens.

When poultry is being cross-bred for special purposes, such as roasters, broilers, etc., I believe that better results will come when we use a male of the smaller breed and hens of the larger breed of fowls.

Incubator chicks should be fed with more caution than those hatched with hens. Their artificial condition makes them more delicate and more susceptible to changes of food and temperature.

With poultry there is greater opportunity for choice among a long list of breeds than among any other kinds of stock. We can select color according to our taste; we can breed for eggs or for flesh, for sitters or non-sitters, for large or small fowls.

Feeding fowls does not consist in throwing out to them a certain quantity of feed one, two or three times a day. It requires judgment to properly feed fowls. They will not require the same quantity every time, nor the same kind of feed. This is a matter that can be studied with profit.

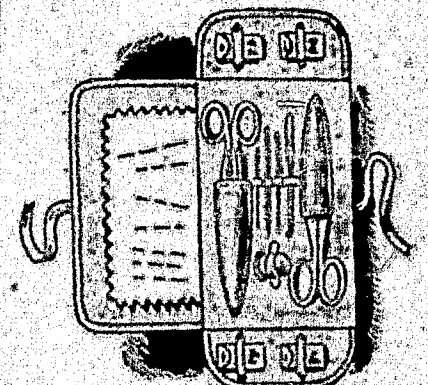

Moisture in Incubators.

Moisture tests at the Oregon station were made in which incubators were operated, according to the directions of makers with the exception that moisture was used in different amounts. In the moisture machines a tray of dry sand was kept under the eggs. The sand in the maximum moisture machines was kept wet all the time, or as wet as it could be kept without water standing on the sand. The final results showed an increase in number of chicks hatched at 24 per cent. by using moisture in incubators.

HAS MANY USEFUL PURPOSES.

Easily Made Work Case Valuable for a Variety of Constantly Used Household Implements.

One of those useful little work cases which always make such acceptable gifts may be seen in our sketch, and with a little care and ingenuity can easily be made by any one blessed with clever fingers. The outer case should be of strong silk or brocade, lined with wash-leather, and bound at the edges with narrow ribbon. Little wash-leather pockets are provided for the scissors, and will help to keep them bright and in good condition when not in use, and there are straps of ribbon arranged to hold bodkins, a button-hook, a shuttle and a thimble in the center, while other straps for holding packets of needles are provided on the flaps of either side. There is a larger flap at the top, which folds down over the other two, and is finally tied across with ribbon ends. This flap is furnished with several pieces of flannel, which serve the purpose of a needle-book.

SOME POINTERS ABOUT COATS.

Many Varieties from Which One May Choose and Always Be in Style.

The girl who is choosing a serviceable coat suit for every day wear from now until October should regard these pointers:

It is as fashionable to cut off a coat half way between the knees and hips as between knees and ankles.

Coats are single-breasted, rarely double-breasted.

New models show straight panel backs which hang for several inches lower than the sides. These panels are also pointed as well as straight.

Sleeves are still small and reach to the wrist, and many of them show flat, fitted cuffs.

Three-button cutaway coats are made in all materials.

Revers are often omitted. Flat trimming is put around the neck and a Dutch collar of baby Irish lace is added at the back.

Sleeveless coats are being made up in summer materials, and they will prove quite comfortable in hot weather. The sides should be joined at the hips, if not above.

Old-Time Accessories.

With the pretty gathered skirts, open over a tunic, and pointed bodices, women have taken up the fad of patches and tall walking sticks, tasseled or tied with a floating ribbon bow. Parasols, too, have extremely long sticks of precious woods banded with gold and flashed with knobs of flashing color in semi-precious stones. A new parasol of bright green is trimmed with raised, button-shaped motifs of khaki-colored soutache braid set in a wide border. The curved handle and the whole stick, banded with gold, are covered with brown plush. On a hot summer's day can anything more disagreeable to the touch be imagined than this plush covering?

Pleasanter to describe is a parasol of white silk bordered deeply with narrow, scant ruffles of the silk revealed into an inch deep fringe. A thick plating of fine white tulle is set under the edge. Stick and handle are of shining black ebony, set with a great pink stone.—Vogue.

Bungalow Rugs.

All over the country rag-carpet rugs are being used for bungalow floor covering, and nothing could be more appropriate. A number of handsome floor rugs were woven from two colors of cut rugs, white cotton dyed for the purpose. One color was a soft blue, the other a blue-green. They were mottled in a hit-and-miss pattern and blocked into squares with white chain.

Of course one can purchase the coarsely woven bungalow rugs in dull colors to use with mission furniture; the knockabout porch furniture, cheap, light in color and weight, is generally considered the best to have, with iron folding couches for beds, which can be spread out at night, making a full-width bed.

The White Petticoat.

The woman who has indulged her fondness for silk in all forms has worn the silk petticoat in season and out. To-day, if she would be fashionable, her petticoats are of lingerie. These have returned to the highest favor. They will not be worn in city streets under dark coat suits, for they seem too easily, but they will be worn under everything else, and especially under evening gowns.

They are made of thin cotton and muslin and handily trimmed with lace when they are for house wear. The last model for the street or for everyday wear under light frocks has a deep ruffle finished with scalloped edge, heavily button-holed.

Buckles or Blippers.

The old-fashioned toe slipper with big square gold or silver or bronze buckle is most modish.

PERU.

Sweet corn is nearly all harvested in this section. A much better crop than was expected a few weeks ago. The frost did not damage the corn here as badly as was first reported.

Mrs. Lucian Walker has gone to N. H. to visit her girlish home and friends, also a brother and sister, who reside there.

Miss Ethel Robinson is teaching in West Mills.

Mrs. Sawyer of Buckfield, has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Mabel Robinson.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Haines died very suddenly Wednesday morning, funeral service Friday.

Mrs. Mattie Chase is keeping house for Emory Cox and caring for Mrs. M. A. Randall, who is quite poorly.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hollis left town for Rangeley Saturday morning, where they are engaged for the winter. They are employed by S. A. Getchell, who has charge of a lumber job there.

L. B. Heald of Sumner has been visiting H. B. Robinson on his way to Rangeley, where he is to spend two weeks hunting with his nephew, Winnie Heald.

The work done in the old cemetery here at the Center, has greatly improved its looks, and the whole place. There is to be a new fence and grading done, in the near future. Hollis Turner has charge of the work and much credit and many thanks are due Mr. Turner for his perseverance in raising the money and the interest he has taken in the improvement of the yard.

Programs are out for the next meeting of New Century Pomona Grange, which will meet with Mountain Grange, North Buckfield, Oct. 13th.

NORTH BUCKFIELD.

Mrs. Frank Turner and Gertrude Warren from Hotel Atwood, Lewiston, were at F. E. Warren's Saturday and Sunday.

Several from this way attended Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Barrow's reception at West Sumner, last Saturday night.

Miss Flora Herod of Mechanic Falls has been visiting in the place for several days.

N. E. Hasey recently lost a three year old colt. It was found dead in the pasture.

Frank Mitchell has finished work for J. M. Mitchell and gone to Hotel Lang.

New Century Pomona will meet with Mountain Grange, Oct. 13th.

Farmers are shipping some apples and receiving good prices. Some have reached as high as $1.00.

M. L. Howe has lately lost three goats. Cause unknown.

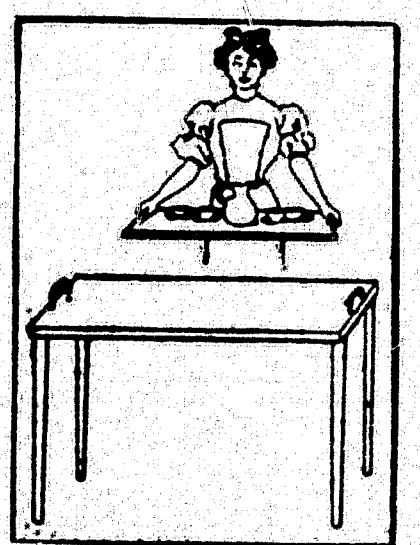

The Wings.

Kisses have wings.
There's no doubt of that,

COMBINES TRAY AND TABLE

One of the Recent Inventions Designed to Save Space in the Modern Flat.

As life is becoming more complex, inventive geniuses are turning their attention in directions which will help preserve the balance, inasmuch as the modern household requires a greater variety of furnishings to meet the increased social demands, while the average home occupies less space than formerly, it has been found necessary to manufacture articles of multiple uses. One of the latest of these is the folding tea tray, which is constructed on the principle of the fold-

Tray and Table in One.

ing sawing table, but is an entirely different article. To see a mild entry into the room with one of these contrivances, laden with tea, coffee or chocolate, as the case may be, and the accompanying cups, saucers, sugar and cream, the unknown guest would think she was bearing a tray only. Then, when she reaches the spot where her mistress desires the table placed, the maid presses with her thumbs two buttons on either side of the tray and legs spring out from the bottom, as if by magic, transforming the affair into a substantial table.

THE SERVICEABLE COAT SUIT

Many Points Which It Will Be Well to Remember When Making Your Selection.

The girl who is choosing a serviceable coat suit for everyday wear from now until October should regard these points:

It is as old fashioned to cut off a coat half way between the knees and hips as between knees and ankles.

Coats are single-breasted, rarely double-breasted.

New models still show straight panel backs, which hang for several inches lower than the sides. These panels are also pointed as well as straight.

Sleeves are still small and reach to the wrist, and many of them show flat, fitted cuffs.

Three-button cutaway coats are made in all materials.

Revers are often omitted. Flat trimming is put around the neck and a Dutch collar of baby Irish lace is added at the back.

Sleeveless coats are being made up in summer materials, and they will prove quite comfortable in hot weather. The sides should be joined at the hips, if not above.

Jewelry for the Elderly Woman.

It is an axiom that all jewelry is not becoming to all people.

In spite of a belief to the contrary, diamonds do not look well on the majority of middle-aged people.

Their intense brightness makes eyes and hair and skin duller by contrast, so that only women who have retained much of their youthful coloring may wear them successfully.

They may be worn in the hair, or as buckles or pins in the trimming of the gown, but close to the skin they are likely to emphasize wrinkles and other imperfections, where such exist.

A woman with a pale face should never wear jet. Dull gold ornaments, on the other hand, would be decidedly pretty.

To white-haired women jet is suited, and for them also dull gold, set with onyx, is both charming and distinctive.

The middle-aged woman, with pretty gray hair and a white skin, with a little color under it, will find coral most becoming.

For the woman with blue or blue-gray eyes and gray hair, amethyst, set in dull silver, is an excellent choice.

Rubies are too brilliant for the average elderly woman, although with certain dark skins and iron gray hair they are pleasing.

Final Touch to Costume.

"It is strange how a little thing will give an air to a costume," said a West Philadelphia woman. "I have a friend who has a pronounced olive complexion. That woman knows how to whiten her complexion without adding a bit of powder."

"How does she do it?" She always wears a tiny bit of black velvet close to her face.

"Perhaps it is just a band about the collar, but however she manages it she wears it close to her face."

"This makes it quite possible to wear a gown which otherwise would be unbecoming, for the black whitens her skin wonderfully."

Fans Came Back.

Fans, which were rather tabooed for awhile, have returned to fashion. They come in the color of the gown that is worn.

CHAT ON MATTERS OF MORE OR LESS IMPORTANCE.

Most Effective Method of Canning Vegetables to Insure a Satisfactory Result—For Yellow Beans and Tomatoes.

When canning vegetables be sure that the mouths of the jars are perfect, also that the rubbers are firm and clean. Place the jars, covers and rubbers in cold water and bring to a boil. Many a jar of vegetables has spoiled because the cover and rubber were not sterilized. The following recipes will be found very reliable for canning green peas, string beans, corn, asparagus, etc., for winter use:

Green Peas.—Gather the peas when full, but tender; shell them, then wash and scald them in hot water. When well drained, throw into boiling water with a little salt, a sprig of green mint, and a pinch of carbonate of soda, and boil till tender, or from 10 to 15 minutes. Lift them from the pot with a perforated spoon, and place in jars placed upon straw in a pan of boiling water. Boil up the liquor in the kettle and fill the jars to overflowing with this, sealing immediately.

Canned Asparagus.—Into an asparagus boiler put salt water, and when this boils lay in it the asparagus, from which the bottoms of the scraped stalks have been cut. Boil gently until tender, but not broken. Remove carefully from the liquor, stand the stalks on end in fruit jars, boil the water hard, and fill the jars to overflowing, then seal immediately. Keep in a cool, dark place.

Canned Yellow Beans.—Remove the strings from the beans and cut into inch lengths. Cover with water and boil until tender, but not soft, then season with salt and pepper. Take the beans from the pot with a perforated spoon and put them in jars, standing in a pan of boiling water. Boil up the liquor in the kettle, and fill the jars to overflowing with this, sealing immediately.

Canned Tomatoes.—Scald the tomatoes and remove the skins, laying the vegetables in the colander to drain. Put into a porcelain-lined kettle and bring to a boil. Cook for 15 minutes, dipping off the superfluous liquor; season with salt and pour, boiling hot, into heated glass jars. Seal immediately.

Crab Rarebit.

Melt one tablespoonful of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour and cook thoroughly. Add two cups of cream in which has been dissolved a pinch of soda and cook until thick, seasoning with salt, red pepper and minced parsley. Then add one cup or more of chopped cooked crab meat. When the mixture is heated add two tablespoonfuls of Parmesan cheese and the same quantity of sherry. Arrange squares of buttered toast on a hot platter. Pour the crab mixture over them, sprinkle with grated cheese and serve piping hot.

Mayonnaise Without Egg.

Very few people know one can make a perfect tasty mayonnaise without any eggs. Place a teaspoonful of plain mustard, mixed with a few drops of cold water, in a small bowl. Add oil, not necessarily drop by drop, but still rather slowly. Stir vigorously all the while. As it thickens too much to handle comfortably, thin with lemon juice or vinegar. A little tarragon vinegar is always a great addition to any salad. After the mayonnaise is finished, season according to taste and discretion.

Delicious Breakfast Dish.

Take two or three lamb or veal kidneys, cut in small pieces, place in salt water for half an hour. Wash and put in clean water to boil. As soon as it boils pour off water, then chop or grind a large onion fine and brown in butter, add a cup of boiling water, put the kidneys in this and boil gently for half an hour. Salt and pepper to taste. Ten minutes before serving add a spoonful of tomato catsup and a little thickening. Do not boil kidneys hard and fast, as they will become tough instead of tender.

Small Cakes.

One pound of sugar, one-half pound of butter, four eggs, one-quarter pound flour. Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually and beat until light, then add the well-beaten yolks, then the whites beaten stiff, and last the flour. Roll very thin. It will be much easier rolled if thoroughly chilled before rolling on a well-floured board. This is a hand-stir recipe and should be divided unless a large number of the delicacies are desired.

Soft Gingerbread.

Half a cupful sugar, half a cupful syrup, half a teaspoonful cinnamon, one teaspoonful ginger, one egg, half a cupful melted butter and lard, half a cupful of soda dissolved in a little hot water and then put with the sour milk; add flour enough to make a stiff batter, pour on greased pan and bake half an hour in moderate oven.

Sweet Onions.

Peel two large onions and slice Put in cold water; add one teaspoonful of salt to the water and let stand for half an hour. Then drain off. Pour over this one cupful of vinegar and a tablespoonful of sugar, mixed. You ready to serve. This is delicious.

HER PHYSICIAN ADVISED

Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Columbus, Ohio.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during a change of life. My doctor told me it was good, and since taking it I feel so much better that I can do all my work again. I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a fine remedy for all women's troubles, and I never forget to tell my friends what it has done for me."

Mrs. E. HANSON, 804 East Long St., Columbus, Ohio.

Another Woman Helped.

Granville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored my health and strength, and proved worth mountains of gold to me. For the sake of other suffering women I am willing you should publish my letter."

Mrs. CHARLES BAILEY, R.F.D., Granville, Vt.

Women who are passing through this critical period or who are suffering from any of those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of the fact that for thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills. In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

SIZE OF BUT LITTLE MOMENT

The Most Deadly and Destructive Foes of Mankind Are of Minute Proportion.

In one of Herbert Wells' brilliant stories the terribly scientific and practically invincible Martians who have invaded the earth and conquered England are stopped in the midst of their victories and utterly destroyed by the attacks of microscopic foes. Infinitely small organisms, germs of diseases to which man has become in some degree immune, slay the wonderful warriors of a planet never invaded by these earth foes. What the greatest battleships and the heaviest guns could not do the unseen and unknown living seeds of death accomplish.

More clearly every day the world understands that in the life and affairs of mankind the most deadly and destructive foes are extremely small. All of the fierce mammals and poisonous serpents of Africa do not kill as many human beings in ten years as the little fly slays in one. The tigers and cobras of India kill their thousands every year, but the rats which spread the germs of the bubonic plague destroy their tens of thousands. In this country the common house fly undoubtedly causes more deaths than all the venomous snakes, wild beasts, mad dogs, runaway horses and all-tempered bulls, ten times over. The actual proportion is probably much higher than ten to one.

TROUBLE FOR BOYISH KNIGHT

Unfeeling Police Officer Arrested Youth in the Act of Kissing Away Sweetheart's Tears.

It's a pity a boy can't kiss away his sweetheart's tears without a big, unsympathetic policeman taking them both to the children's court, the New York Evening Telegram says.

Any fellow would have acted just as Jacob Kinsler did, especially if he was as fond of his sweetheart as Jacob is of Susie Stahl. Jacob is a manly little chap of 16 and Susie, two years his junior, is one of the prettiest little girls on the east side.

"We wasn't regular kissing," explained Jacob. "I'll tell you how it was. A boy nearly twice as big as I am came along and slapped Susie and she began to cry."

"Why didn't you tackle him?" asked the court.

"He was too big for me to lick, and I let him go. But I did the next best thing. Susie was crying someplace fierce, and I just grabbed her and was kissing away her tears when the cop came along and said I was violating the law. I didn't know what he meant, and as Susie kept on crying I kept on kissing. Then the cop stepped up."

"You and Susie may go now," said the court to Jacob. "The next time she cries give her your handkerchief—when you see a cop coming."

Well Done.

The wise book agent says, I swear, I've learned to kiss. I've been well-doed.

USING A LANTERN IN STABLE

Method of Placing Light in Barn to Get Best Results; No Danger of Overturning.

A good way to get a good light in stable and avoid all danger of the lantern being overturned is to stretch a smooth wire from one end of the barn to the other just back of the horses' stalls. Hang a lantern on a common harness snap and attach it to the wire and slide the lantern wherever it is needed. The wire should be high enough to be out of the way.

Feeding Cows.

Animals of the same variety are not alike, and scarcely any two will do equally well on the same food. Each animal's wants should be well supplied, if possible. Cattle of different ages should be separated for feeding, as the weak ones will not do well with the strong. Cows are weak and shy; it takes them longer to eat their meals and they should therefore be put where they can not be bothered by superiors in strength.

Weaning Pigs.

Pigs should be at least eight weeks old before they are weaned, and if it is not intended that the sow should have a second litter it is best to allow the pigs to suckle until they are ten to twelve weeks of age.

"I never could stand it," he said to me with a woman who was feeling of me.

"Don't let me trouble," she replied. "Nature has done her best to take you immune from that kind of weakness."

MEXICO AND RIDLONVILLE.

The Week's News as Gathered by our Special Correspondent

On Sunday, a family reunion was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B.
Parsons on Granite street, brothers meeting who had not been together for thirteen years. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parsons of Buckfield, Emory Parsons and wife of Hartford and Mrs. Parsons sister, Mrs. W. M. Morse of Greene, Me., also the children and grandchildren and great grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. T. F.
Kendall and son Arthur of Rumford,
Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Parsons, Miss Alice and Master Freddie Bennett and Master Leon Parsons. All enjoyed a very pleasant day together.

The Central school was closed Tuesday morning for the week by order of the Board of Health, fumigation being necessary on account of a number of cases of diphtheria in town. Three children of Mr. Richards, who lives on the River road, a child of George Welch, also a child of Mr. H. McEwen of Whitman street, are the victims of the disease, the daughter of Mr. Welch being very ill of it. It is hoped that the prompt action of the board, will stay the run of the disease.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Parsons and granddaughter, Alice Bennett, expect to leave Friday for a week's vacation in Melrose, Mass., and in Vermont, where they will visit relatives.

Martha Kimball was brought from Stratfield Park Saturday, where she has been boarding, to her home in Ridlownville, where she lies very ill with typhoid fever.

Quite a number of the Sunshine Club and K. O. K. A. boys plan to attend the fair at Andover this week. Castle Fisher base ball team playing a game with the K. O. K. A. team of Andover.
Monday being the eleventh birthday of Basil G. Gleason, five of his boy friends were invited to take tea with him. A very dainty tea was served with a birthday cake decorated with eleven tiny candles in the center. After the boys played games, and with Carlton Clifford as accompanist on the piano, Basil Gleason played selections on the violin and Earl Ellsworth sang.
A fine time was enjoyed and a number of gifts were left as pleasant reminders of the day.

Mrs. Martin Carroll moved last week from the Gleason house on Bridge St.
to the Kidder house on Main street.
Levi Albert has moved to Lewiston.

Cecil Pierce met with quite an accident last week. He was hanging a door and while using his jack knife, it slipped and went into his hand, cutting an artery. Mr. Pierce went home and called a physician who came and dressed the wound, taking a stitch.
It is getting along nicely.

A. W. Harris is visiting in Lewiston for a week.

Mrs. A. E. Small went to Lewiston
Tuesday to visit at the home of Mrs.
Frank Herlick.

Fred Fish has moved from Main St., Ridlownville, to the Towle house on Granite street.

Mrs. Kenneth Bryant, who has been visiting in Stockton Springs for two weeks, returned Thursday. Upon the evening of her return she was pleasantly greeted at the home of Mr. and Mrs.
M. Conway, by a party of friends, about thirty-five being present. Cards and music were enjoyed and fruits, pastry and ice cream were served. In behalf of the friends present, Mrs.
Bryant was presented with a very handsome gold locket set with chips diamonds and chain much to her surprise. Mrs. Bryant and Mrs. Stephen Wagner expect to leave in a few weeks for Alberta to join their husbands who have taken up land there.

Wm. Boyce has moved from the Wickford house, which P. L. Hanlon has purchased, into the Clifford house on Roxbury Ave. and Dr. Hanlon moved into his new home Saturday.

The Laurel Club met last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. E.
Small. The afternoon was spent with puzzles and games, and refreshments were served. The next meeting is this Thursday at the home of Mrs. T. M.
Stevens.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Doyen and daughter, and L. D. Howard and wife, spent the week end at their camp at Garland Pond. Mr. Howard succeeded in securing a fine deer.

Charles Garcelon and brother and Irvin Toothaker, spent a few days last week, deer hunting.

Joe Moody has accepted a position in New York and went there last week.
Edna Dodd is spending two weeks with her father in East Pepperell, Mass.
where he is working.

John Harlow visited F. A. Parsons' on Sunday.

The Knights of King Arthur held the first meeting of the year on Monday evening at the church vestry. Plans for the trip to the Andover fair were completed.

On Saturday afternoon at the Congregational church vestry, a society called "The Sons of David," will be organized for boys under ten years of age. Mr. Fisher is at the head of this society, which speaks for the success of the order.

The name "Sunshine Club" has been changed to "Queens of Avillion," and will soon have their initiation and degrees.

S. O. Dorr, who has been engaged on work at South Paris for several months, returned home Saturday. Chester Knox, who has been working with him for several weeks, returned last week.

Born, Saturday, Oct. 2nd, to the wife of Richard Finlay of Roxbury Ave., a son.

Mrs. A. J. Kierstead is visiting relatives in Massachusetts for two weeks.

Mrs. Gordon O'Leary left this week for Green Bay, Wis., to join her husband, who has located there.

Good news of her progress has been received from Mrs. H. P. Holt, who is recovering from a serious operation performed last Thursday at the Sisters
Hospital in Lewiston. Miss Augusta Richards accompanied Mrs. Holt, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Holt are caring for the home during her absence.

Mrs. Martin Carroll's sister from Waltham, Mass., was her guest over Sunday.

The Orange Circle was entertained on Wednesday at the home of Mrs.
George H. Gleason.

Mrs. Frank Tucker of Livermore, is visiting friends in town.

Duncan Low, who has been working in a lumber camp at Frye, Me., returned home this week and has accepted a position with the International Paper Co.

An alarm of fire called out the fire department at eight o'clock Tuesday morning to a chimney fire at Chabot's three tenement house. The chimney burned out and fire broke out around the chimney, which was put out almost before the department arrived. Most of the damage done was by smoke.

Paddy—You know I am down off
the water wagon now.

Paddy—Oh, why did you do that?

Paddy—Tut, man! I gave up my seat to a lady.

Feeding Farm Hands.

Every farmer's wife knows what troublesome appetites farm hands usually have; but while they eat well they work well, too.

Here's a good suggestion about feeding farm hands. Give them plenty of Quaker Oats. A big dish of Quaker Oats porridge with sugar and cream or milk is the greatest breakfast in the world for a man who needs vigor and strength for a long day's work. The man that eats Quaker Oats heartily and often is the man who does good work without excessive fatigue. There is a sustaining quality in Quaker Oats not found in other foods, and for economy it is at the head of the list. Besides the regular size packages Quaker Oats is packed in large size family packages, with and without skins.
